Paddling for a good cause

A group of Boston personalities gathered along the banks of the Charles on Sunday for the AccesSportAmerica Mayor's Cup Regatta, which raised money for AccesSportAmerica programs. A list of chefs including Evan Deluty of Stella and Andy Husbands of Tremont 647 cooked for the 30 teams that raced along the river. Bob Lobel served as race announcer. Also there for the benefit were the Bruins Ice Girls (and Blades!). The day raised more than $175,000 for AccesSportAmerica, which helps get kids and adults living with disabilities to participate in sports such as soccer, wind surfing, and, in Sunday's case, boat racing.
